6-week Summer Program in Cambridge, England
July 3—August 12, 2016

Six-week program offering courses in English and History at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge University. Each year, a group undergraduate and graduate students travel to Cambridge where they take two courses from offerings in English literature, writing, and history. Studies are at Gonville and Caius, established in 1348 and the fourth-oldest of Cambridge University’s thirty-one colleges. For nearly 40 years, the UNH Summer Program in Cambridge has provided more than 1,600 students with the opportunity to learn first-hand the truth of E.M. Forster’s observation: Cambridge is, indeed, a magical place. Discover it for yourself.

Curriculum
Students take 2 courses (8 credits), choosing from course offerings in British literature and history. Summer 2016 offerings are noted below (full descriptions available online). All courses may be taken at the graduate level (note that UNH course levels typically start at 400 for first year undergraduate courses).

- HIST 498: Explorations in Historical Perspectives: The Apocalypse of War: World War I and the Making of the Modern World
- ENGL 511: Major Writers in English: The Tudors: Sex, Politics, and Literature in the Courts of Henry VIII and Elizabeth I
- ENGL 758/858: Shakespeare: Performance and Interpretation
- ENGL 797H/897H: Special Studies in Literature: James Joyce’s Ulysses
- ENGL 711: Specimens of Victorian Literature

Faculty Leader
Prof. Dennis Britton from the UNH English Department serves as on-campus and on-site director. Each summer, he is joined by other UNH and Cambridge faculty.
